
Final Symphony Concert Will Feature 3 Soloists

Annual spring concert of the Wartburg-Community Symphony Orchestra will be held tomorrow evening at 8 p.m. in Knights Gym, Ernest Hagen conducting.

Included on the program will be Ballet Music from "Faust" by Gounod, "Ballad" by Henry Cowell; "Andante Cantabile" by Tschaikowsky and "O Rest in the Lord" from "Elijah" by Mendelssohn.

Miss Mai Hogan, Music Department, will sing "Habenera," from "Carmen." Miss Hogan, a contralto, graduated from the Peabody Institute, Nashville, Tenn. "Vesti La Giubba" from "Pagliacci" will be sung by C. Robert Larson, tenor, of the Wartburg music faculty.

Two other numbers to be presented by the symphony orchestra are "Cavatina" from "Faust" and "Bacchanale" from "Samson and Delilah."

The featured performer of the evening will be Miss Jean Abramson, pianist. She will present "Concertino for Pianoforte and Chamber Orchestra" by Walter Piston.

Miss Abramson graduated from the Eastman School of Music and is on the Wartburg faculty. A freewill offering will be taken.

Duke Ellington Coming For Pop Concert Mon.

By Bob Loslo

Having Duke Ellington at Knights Gymnasium this Monday for a popular concert is the equivalent to having Eugene Ormandy for a classical concert. For Ellington, who has been called America's most durable musician, has been on top in the popular field ever since 1927.

Organizing a band in 1932, Duke almost immediately rose to the pinnacle of stardom that he enjoys today. One of the big reasons for his success, especially during a time when other bands were failing, is his versatility. Ellington maintains that there is no long-hair work and no jazz — there's just music.

The Duke has adequately proven his point by including all kinds of music in his repertoire with equal success. His original composition "It Don't Mean a Thing if It Ain't Got Swing" is recognized the world over as the national anthem of that great era in the thirties. But he has also written works that have been played by such greats as Leopold Stokowski and the NBC Symphony Orchestra.

'ORUM' ON TV. Ellington's latest and one of his greatest, works is "A Drum Is a Woman," which was recently performed on a television color spectacular show. This work is a chronicle of jazz, from the jungle to the present time.

Duke, who incidentally got his name from a playmate who admired his regal air, has written over two-thousand compositions, from his "Liberian Suite," tribute to the small democracy of Liberia, to a popular number which was once scribbled on the back of an envelope in ten minutes. Some of his other more popular works are "Mood Indigo," "Sophisticated Lady," "Don't Get Around Much Any More" and "I Got It Bad and That Ain't Good."

ON RECORD. Duke has an unusual way of making records. He sits at the piano and plays snatches of a new theme. The men in his orchestra listen, and then one by one begin to work out the piece themselves.

The Duke listens, trying to hear who has the best version. Then he and the arrangers get together and another Ellington record is born.

Eighty concerts a year are given on the Duke's present tour schedule. He finds time to appear on television on such shows as "What's My Line," "The Steve Allen Show" and "The Woolworth Hour." In 1955 Ellington did a command performance before President Eisenhower and his Cabinet at the White House Correspondents Dinner. Once, in Paris, Ellington played in a bombproof shelter.

FANS VARY. Duke's admirers include Leopold Stokowski, Dave Brubeck, Roy Campanella, Harry S. Truman and Jackie Gleason, who says: "There should be a better word than music — tapestries, perhaps, a blending of vivid colors — to describe what Edward Kennedy Ellington writes. His musical moods induce a hypnotic effect in the listener, transforming him into the party of the first part."

But perhaps the most complimentary remark about Ellington comes from a European critic who once said, "Duke Ellington's music and Walt Disney's cartoons are the only two original art forms America has produced."

Scholarship Presented Wisconsinite

Linda Mugridge, Waupun, Wis., has been selected to receive the four-year, $1,200 Regent's Scholarship offered by the Board of Regents of Wartburg College. Miss Mugridge, a freshman at Wartburg this coming fall, plans to study to be a secondary teacher in English and history.

Seven other high school seniors were chosen to receive $450 scholarships. Connie Gosewich, Montgomery, Minn.; Barbara Meyer, Watertown, Wis.; Paul Ahrens, Cresco; Bruce Bergquist, Omaha, Neb.; Richard Jebsen, Blue Island, Ill.; Grace John, Sheboygan, Wis.; and Dennis Thurow, Madison, S.D., were the seven selected.

Two National Merit Scholarship winners, will also be attending Wartburg College next fall, according to a recent announcement. They are Bruce Bergquist, Omaha, Neb., and David Grube, Waverly.

Approximately eight hundred of these scholarships are awarded each year out of 162,000 who apply. Last year three Ivy League schools had 40 per cent of the winners.

Stones In News - 4 More Engaged

Engagement announcements are again included in the news on campus. Senior Bill Thalacker, Des Moines and Marilyn Schmidt, Oelwein, are engaged. Marilyn, a former Wartburg student, is now teaching at Strawberry Point. No definite plans have been made.

Judy Benton, freshman from Janesville, is engaged to Dennis Christensen of Cedar Falls. No definite plans have been made.

Old Out - New In

Seniors were absent from the Publications House this week, as next year's staff worked putting out this issue. Veterans will return next week to put out the final issue of the 1956-57 TRUMPET.

Lost?

OPPIE MIGHT HAVE ANSWER

Have you lost anything lately? If so, the place to go is Oppie's Lost and Found Department, just inside the door and up the stairs in Luther Hall.

Look on the coat-rack or inside the boxes and see if the item you lost is there, and chances are it is. Everything from glasses and jewelry to women's spring coats adorn the shop.

Herb Engelbrecht, college business manager, dropped in one day and mentioned the want ads that his wife was running in the local papers to find a lost earring. Oppermann jokingly said "Try our Department." And there it was buried under a mound of other items.

"Everything not claimed by the end of the year will be turned over to the Children's Home, provided that they can use it," stated Oppermann, proprietor of the establishment.

Next time you're waiting in the outer office to reply to that "Oppie" card, browse through the lost and found. Who knows? You may find that textbook you bought at the beginning of the semester—just in time to study for the final exam.

SMILES WERE on faculty faces yesterday as the Rev. Karl Schmidt and Miss Erna Moehl look at their Ford Foundation checks. Fifty-two faculty members received similar checks this week from interest on the recent grant.

Honors Day Convocation Next Friday

The annual Honors Day Convocation will be held in Knights Gymnasium on Friday, May 24. Highlight of the program will be the awarding of scholarships.

Heading the list of scholarships will be the scholarships awarded to students from funds received from outside groups or individuals.

These scholarships, which range in value from twenty five to three-hundred dollars, are awarded on the basis of scholarship need, character and other factors.

MORE SCHOLARSHIPS. In addition to the special scholarships, twenty-five to forty class scholarships will be awarded to undergraduates. These awards, which amount to $100 each, are given according to the amount of money available in the scholarship fund and the number of students qualifying and applying.

For next week's convos, a drama presentation by a well-known mono-actress and a worship service to be conducted by the college Chaplain head the schedule for the final Convocations of the year.

FEATURES MONODRAMA. Juanita Taylor Shaw, associate professor of drama at Drake University, will present a monodrama at convo Tuesday. Mrs. Shaw, who has been at Drake for 30 years, is head costumer for all dramatic productions at the University.

Mrs. Shaw is a well-known actress in this area and graduated from Drake. She has done graduate work at Northwestern University.

The Rev. Edwin Schick, college chaplain, will conduct a worship service for the final convocation Thursday.

Faculty Activities Vary As Summer Plans Laid

Faculty members were in the news this week as Wartburg teachers announced everything from having an article published to taking a leave of absence for additional graduate work.

William Azbell, head of the Physics Department, has been selected to serve as a session chairman at the annual Colloquium of College Physicists held at the State University of Iowa, Iowa City, June 12-15.

This colloquium, a national meeting, was attended last year by physicists from 80 colleges in 25 states. Azbell's appointment was made by J. A. Van Allen, head of Physics Department at SUI.

SANDBERG AUTHORS. Dr. Edwin T. Sandberg, English Department, will have an article appearing in the Journal of Higher Education. The article is entitled "The Novel: an Experience in Living."

W. G. Fruehling, Psychology Department head, has been granted a leave of absence to work toward a Ph. D. at the State University of Iowa.

Miss Margaret Wolff, head of the Journalism Department, has been named to the faculty of the Christian Writers and Editors Conference, Green Lake, Wis., July 27-Aug. 10. Miss Wolff will teach beginning article writing and poetry writing the first week and poetry writing during the second week.

ASSISTS POETRY. She has been asked to assist in formulating a poetry course for the correspondence work of the Christian Authors Guild.

Dr. John Chellevold, dean of the faculty, has been selected to attend a two-week seminar on Methods and Research in Columbus, Ohio, June 16-30. This seminar is being conducted by the Office of Naval Research.

Changeless, Yet Changing

There are certain things in this world which never seem to change. Others appear to be in a constant state of flux. Paradoxically as it may seem, Wartburg College is both of these.

To this year's graduating class and to others who will be leaving the campus for the final time, Wartburg will remain as it is now. Times and places, people and buildings — these may be different in later years. Youthful faces will gradually cloud into the full maturity of life. Homecomings and alumni days will mark the passing of years.

Yet, to those who have graduated, Wartburg will remain the place where they spent some of the more memorable years of life. Emotions may be mixed when the strains of "War March of the Priests" usher out the graduates, but the basic fact still remains — the years were good.

As time rushes by, bitter memories will fade, leaving behind only the joys of college. And as the erstwhile students look back, they will see the changeless Wartburg.

To those who will remain, Wartburg is something quite different. Nostalgia has yet to dim the faults of the college. People and places are still too animated to be regarded with indulgence. These campus contemporaries have yet to feel the sentiment the status of being alumni brings.

The Wartburg the present students know is a changing college. A school that is rapidly expanding in student body, faculty and physical plant. Trite cliches poured out from the public relations office expound the glories of this "greater Wartburg."

But the students pass by — oblivious to everything but today. Then, suddenly, it's commencement time once again, and the graduates realize this is the last time. And the undergraduates begin to think that in one, two or three years, they too will be ready to pass across that stage.

To both of these groups, Wartburg is something different. Changing constantly — but constantly the same.

VACATING PUB HOUSE

Wainscott Views The Past

By Joan Pape

Over in the Publications House there is a small office nearly filled by a typewriter and a desk littered with all sorts of papers. For the past year this cramped office has been the environs of the TRUMPET editor, senior Cy Wainscott.

When the TRUMPET interviewed him, Wainscott remarked with a laugh, "Seems rather strange to have somebody writing an article like this about me. For the past three years I have written the features on retiring TRUMPET editors."

TAKES OVER. Immediately it was decided that Wainscott would take charge of the interview by answering the same kind of questions he himself would have asked in the past.

"First of all, I suppose you'll want to know if I'd do it all over again," Wainscott said, "and the answer is yes. I have really enjoyed the past year's work, probably because I had such a fine staff. It was largely due to their efforts that the TRUMPET received an All-American this year."

FINISHING one job, retiring editor Cy Wainscott mails an application for a new job.

When asked what he considered the most important news stories of the year, he replied, "The dancing issue and the NCAA stories made up our biggest news. It might be added that though the NCAA story was one of our biggest scoops, it was also one of our biggest blunders. We stayed up half the night trying to get that story, only to discover later that the individual reporting the news to us from Illinois had his facts mixed up."

PATS STAFF. Along with tures taken on Saturday morning have appeared in the paper that same day. Wainscott stated that his biggest problem has been trying to get eight pages of news in a four-page paper.

"Our special anniversary issue was probably one of our best accomplishments of the year," stated Wainscott. "I might also add that I'm proud with this, Wainscott remarked that it has been the TRUMPET staff's effort during the past year always to get the latest possible news. Sometimes pictures of the progress that the TRUMPET has made, especially in its financial organization. Special credit must go to Gary Volberding and Fred Weihmuller for this."

LOSLO JOINS. About this time Bob Loslo, columnist of Knight Beat fame, joined the interview.

"There's an interesting sidenote for you," Wainscott remarked. "Los and I have worked together on publications ever since our grade school days back in old Rantoul, Ill. Next year will probably be the first that we're separated."

Other activities of Wainscott have included work at the theater and on radio station KWAR, where he has served as sportscaster at basketball games. His efforts at the radio station have won him membership in Pi Beta Epsilon, national honorary radio fraternity.

Wainscott's plans for the future include work on a daily newspaper, though as yet, he is undecided just where this will be.

KNIGHT BEAT

by Bob Loslo

The second hymn at last Thursday's convo, following Dr. Siefkes' talk on "Anchors", was even more appropriate than we realized. Veteran Dave Linkey tells me that it's the official Navy hymn.

If you want to take a course next year that is interesting and almost fun to attend, try acting. Several weeks ago we had an assignment to go out into Waverly and observe people's reactions. We were to give some of the clerks in the stores a difficult time, for instance, and mentally record their reactions for future stage characterizations.

Kathryn Koob and John Werner went into a jewelry store and pretended to buy an engagement ring.

Joan Pape and I went to a grocery store and asked for "Copasta," a contorted pronunciation for a Hungarian food. You know, that clerk never did admit that he didn't know what I was asking for. He even asked one of the managers if it could be ordered for us.

But the fellows who really went overboard were Oberdorfer and Wainscott. They drove out to several houses on the outskirts of Waverly and told the residents that they were college survey assistants. Ob and Wainscott said that Route 218 was being re-routed and the people would have to sell their houses, since the new road was going right over their property.

Things were all right except that the boys forgot to go back and tell the people that it was all a joke.

The worried residents called the Chamber of Commerce for verification, and the Chamber of Commerce in turn called the college. The boys had to spend their next acting period making apologies to all the would-be evictees.

A little later the Chamber of Commerce sent Mr. Dickson a letter saying that there were no hard feelings and congratulated the boys on pulling off one of the "greatest hoaxes in Waverly's history."

As the year draws to a close and it becomes evident that I might break two-point, I want to say that it has been fun being a fellow member of the Loyal Order of the A.P.'s. But what do you say we don't reorganize for next year, fellows? Oppie got a severe case of writer's cramp this year sending out invitations.

WHAT IN THE WORLD

Mayer Cites Need For Continued Aid

By Robert Mayer

In recent years the United States and its Western allies have succeeded in preserving intact a free world, weak with dissension and disunity, from the ominous scepter of Communism. From Korea to Jordan they have acted with vigor and toughness sufficient to force the halt of Communist infiltration into the shaking foundations of the Middle East and Asia. In areas where their very existence is at stake, they have marshaled strength out of weakness and restored order from chaos.

There is just one reason that can largely account for this position of relative strength, and that one reason is foreign aid. Without this there would have been no United Nations, no peace in Korea, no free Viet Nam, no settlement in Suez, no victory in Jordan. And in India, Burma, Turkey, Greece, Iraq, where great danger is now imminent, success is again solely dependent upon the transplanting of economic might to the poverty-stricken millions who are hung in precarious balance.

And yet what is to be the fate of this aid, the only efficient weapon against militant Communism? Who is to decide if freedom is to live or to die? The answer rests ridiculously in the hands of a ponderous body of America's congressmen, divided by party, and in motive, unanimous only in a cry of naive protest against the President's 71-billion- dollar budget.

"Inflationary, fantastic, extravagant" cried the economy-bent pundits, and suddenly it's a wonderful world of congress turned professional economist, embroiled in trite party maneuvers, petty factions, and personalities. Proclaiming that it is better to cut expenses than to suffer that hair-curling depression all fear, these men have aimed their spree of budget-cutting at vital foreign aid allotments.

But what is to be the price of this "economy"? Who will give answer to the plea of India's crushing poverty, which says only, "Help me, or I will turn to brother Krushchev"? Who will fan the dying embers of freedom in non-Communist Asia? And who will avert the tragedy of a society with sub-human values?

When so vital and universal a problem as this is lowered to the depths of party struggle, it is time to re-analyze our thinking. Let us take note that this is a cause above the party — that, Democrat or Republican, we still stand to lose the free world in return for what we are told is economy.

As one surveys the grinding poverty of the East, the millions who are facing a choice between Communism and self-determination, the only alternative is to meet the challenge . . . . with some sacrifice.

Diamondeers Win Wet Double Bill

The weatherman finally eased the precipitation to a steady dribble, allowing the Wartburg baseball squad to take the diamond long enough to sneak in a double win over Central College Thursday. Fred Jaspers turned in another fine pitching performance in the opener, as he turned back the Dutchmen 2-1 in 10 innings.

Down 1-0 in the bottom of the seventh inning, Don Staude doubled and romped home on Craig Wason's smash to left to send the contest in overtime. A tricky squeeze play, in which Denny Wessels scored on a bunt by Darwin Fritz, put the victory on ice for Jaspers in the bottom of the 10th frame.

LaVerne Luepker picked up his first win of the season in the nightcap as he combined with Hank Waltmann to blank Central 5-0.

Iowa conference officials rejected the entrance of Penn and Westmar colleges at the conference meeting in Decorah last night.

Officials felt no present need for expansion and preferred to keep the conference intact, according to Dr. Elmer Hertel, secretary of the conference who attended the meeting along with Ax Bundgaard, director of athletics.

PENN OLDER. Penn, one of the older members of the conference was forced to drop from the roster along with Westmar several years ago. Smaller enrollment did not permit the pair to compete on a par with the other Iowa colleges.

Moray L. Eby, commissioner of the conference, turned in his resignation at the meeting last night. Eby gave poor health as the reason. The conference will be governed by the executive committee until a new commissioner can be elected next fall.

Nelson Bose, captain of the Knight cindermen and twice a conference champ high hurdler, will be after his third title today. Bose qualified in the high and low hurdles by winning both preliminaries yesterday. George Scherb, another barrier jumper, also won the right to compete in the highs.

NO SPRINTERS. The Knights failed to qualify in the short sprints, but Bill Riggle placed to run in the finals of the 880 run this afternoon.

In the field events, Wartburg still carries some power in the triple threat high jump trio of Leon Bauer, Carl Anderson and Andy Polis. Jim Thomas, Lamoine Jacobs and Polis will vy for pole vault honors.

Carrying the orange and black baton in the mile relay will be Barry Kline, Phil Moeller, Max Jansen and Riggle. Moeller and Milt Ost will run in the mile and two mile.

Knight golf and tennis squads will be seeing action this afternoon in the conference meet at Decorah.

Luther Nips Golfers

Luther nipped Wartburg, 8-7 on a rain-soaked course Thursday.

Bill Anderson was medalist with an 81, but Luther won 3 of 5 matches to ice the victory. Dick Rausch was the only other Wartburg winner.

Wartburg golfers failed to dent Loras' unbeaten streak — losing 12½-2½.

In doubles competition a hot battle ensued with Wartburg's Warber and Huth, coming out on the top end of the scores 7-5, 3-6 and 11-9.

New Senate To Meet Mon. Night

The present Wartburg Student Senate will meet with the newly elected group next Monday evening, and then Student Body President Don Altmann will turn the gavel over to John Adix, new SBP.

Approval of appointed committee heads will comprise part of the agenda for new Student Senate members. Besides the treasurer, committee chairmen to be approved are: Public Relations, Student Activities, Academic Life, Student Welfare and Student Government.

TWO TO GO. Other action to be taken at Monday's Senate meeting will be to approve the sending of Student Body President John Adix and Vice-President Charles Maahs to Ann Arbor, Mich., Aug. 17-18, to attend the national Student Body Presidents Conference.

Retiring SBP Don Altmann will give recommendations to the '57-'58 Student Senate. Altmann suggests that the utmost be done through communication and information to strengthen the students' relationship with the faculty, administration, church and community.

USE NSA. Altmann recommends that the Senate investigate the possibility of introducing the National Students Association discount purchase card system to Wartburg students and Waverly merchants.

Statistic!
The other day our vice president in charge of good news announced that someone, somewhere, enjoys Coke 58 million times a day. You can look at this 2 ways:
Either we've got an incredibly thirsty individual on our hands. Or Coca-Cola is the best-loved sparkling drink in the world.
We lean to the latter interpretation.
